plants in this territory, working on government war orders, have been able to operate practically "full time" as a result of the saving. One morning recently, between the hours stipulated, 11.000 kilowatts of electric current was saved, this being 1.000 kilowatts more than the expected saving.

Business houses and other establishments within the scope of the "no power" order, have strictly adhered to the request of the fuel administration. All the establishments are without lights during the period and no clevators operate.

It is expected that the power shortage will have passed by September 15, when the big plant on Brunot's Island is expected to resume operations, following a breakdown of the machinery. It is expected that the order of the fuel officials will then be lifted.

CALL UP EXEMPTED MEN

Examining Boards in Porto Rico Take Action Because of Criticism.

Isy Associated Press.!

SAN JUAN, P. R. September 29.—
Men exempted from military service after examination by the local boards are being called for re-examination in San Juan and in many other municipalities in the islands.

In San Juan those being re-examined include chiefly those called for the second draft of 15,000 who probably will be called for active service in October. In other towns it is said boards are generally going over their lists and calling men previously exempted for re-examination.

This action by the examining boards is said to be voluntary on their part, but comes in response to general criticism that throughout the Island ment of the better class have not found it difficult to find grounds on which to obtain exemption. IBy Associated Press. !
